5 AWESOME WINTER DESTINATIONS

So you and your valentine can ride those winter blues away!

Give Old Man Winter the Boot and your Bike and Your Sweetheart some quality time by taking a Road Trip to one of these 5 Great Destinations this winter:

1) Daytona Beach, FL The Big Daytona Bike Week is coming up next month (March 4- 13, 2022) so you've still got time to make plans to attend this iconic event, complete with hard packed beach sand you can ride on and plenty of sunshine. It's known as The Largest Motorcycle Event in the World.

2) Hill Country, TX Near San Antonio and Austin. You'll have the perfect combination of country roads, hills, and as much Texas BBQ as you want, along with that cool Austin vibe, too.

3) Nashville, TN While Nashville may have some cold days, it's still the South, so you can anticipate nice weather, great music, Hattie's Hot Chicken and some scenic rides.

4) Yosemite National Park, CA If National Parks are more your speed than big cities and large bike rallies, Yosemite may be your perfect winter destination for a needed get away with abounding scenic rides and breathtaking back to nature experiences.

5) Bisbee, AZ Closely bordering Mexico, this quaint town is worth your time. You'll find scenic riding opportunities, and a chance to side trip to Mexico, or venture into the Old West with a jaunt to Tombstone, the famous shoot-out town.

6 Tips for WINTER BIKE RIDING

Snow, ice, and super cold temperatures may be your definition of the perfect time to stay indoors. But, if you want to hit the road or are apt to get caught in these conditions while riding, here are some tips to keep in mind.

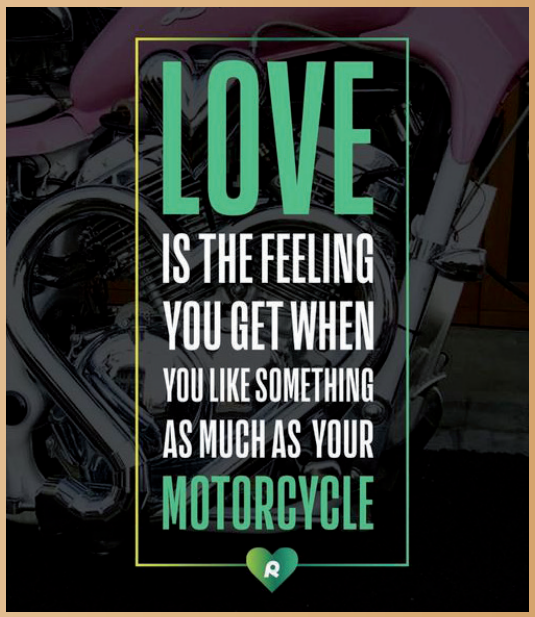

1) Expect loss of traction with snow and ice. It's dangerous, even for experienced riders. Consider studded tires.
2) Watch out for hidden icy patches because you'll lose traction. Even if it's sunny, watch out for leftover snow or ice in shaded or low lying areas.
3) Salted roads aren't just bad for bikes; It can also rob you of traction.
4) Cold Tires give you less grip. Use moderation when breaking, leaning or accelerating.
5) Consider purchasing sport touring tires. They're designed with increased siping to move water and they have compounds to better handle a wider range of road and weather conditions.
6) Don't neglect maintenance after your ride. When it's cold and wet, you may be tempted to just go inside and deal with your bike later. But cold and salt can damage your bike's components.
